Methodist Church Program
Sunday Opens Music Week

Four Local Groups To Take Part; Schools, Other Organizations Assist In Observance

Outstanding musical talent of this city and vicinity, with the four local music clubs in charge, will be presented in a public program at 2:30 p. m. Sunday in the Methodist church, marking the opening of national Music Week observance.

The Salem Music Study, Musical Arts, Junior Music Study and Musical Culture clubs are participating in the program which will feature orchestral, instrumental, and vocal offerings in a variety of numbers.

Other Groups Co-operate
Throughout the week, schools will hold programs in observance of the annual event directed by Mrs. Ellis Satterthwaite, school music supervisor.

Churches of the city will emphasize music in services during the week, while the public library and local theaters will offer special features designed to stimulate interest in music education and advancement.

The observance this year features the slogan—"Support Group Activities"—and all programs are planned to carry out that theme. Business firms will cooperate by decorating their show windows to illustrate well known songs. That feature of the observance attracted wide attention last year, when attractive displays were arranged to illustrate musical numbers.

Mrs. E. E. Dyball, local Music Week chairman, has supervised the arrangements for the observance in this city.

The complete program for tomorrow afternoon follows: Organ prelude, "Minuet" (R. E. Clewell); Homer S. Taylor; greeting, Mrs. Edgar F. Miller of Columbiana, president of the Salem Music Study club; "Gloria-Farmer's Mass in B Flat" (Grosswald); "Barber of Seville" (Rossini); "Wine, Women and Song" (Johann Strauss); "Massanello Overture" (Auber); Methodist church orchestra, directed by Robert F. King.

Choral numbers, "An Old Time Song" (Joseph Carey) and "A Little Old Garden" (Hewitt) girls' chorus, directed by Mrs. Charles Gibson; piano solo, "Witches' Frolic" (Homer Bartlett); Mrs. Frederick Kirkbride; voice, "I Waited for the Lord" (Mendelssohn); Mrs. Dick Fitzpatrick of Columbiana, accompanied by Mrs. Richard Thayer of that city.

Violin, "Zigeunerweisen" (Sarasate); Gusto Conja; voice, "Beside the Still Waters" (Bernard Haden); piano and organ, chorale, "Jesus, Joy of Man's Desiring" (J. S. Bach); Mr. and Mrs. Homer Taylor; voice, "Over the Billowy Sea" (Nowlin-Smith); Frank Davis; trombone, selected, Al. J. Freed.

Junior hymn, from Cologne Tune Book (1623) Junior Music Study Club chorus; national anthem; organ postlude, Mrs. E. T. Coyle of Columbiana.

Accompanists during the program will be Mrs. Robert F. King, Mrs. Coyle, Miss Geraldine Fickes and Miss Lois Dilorith.

Kirk filed suit against the Columbiana county commissioners for the $2,400 after he was reinstated and Engineer Robert Wheatley was declared, at the time, ineligible for the office.

KILLER SEARCH

Meanderings of Mad
Butcher Traced as More
Bodies Are Found

BOX CARS YIELD
GRUESOME FINDS

No Identifying Clues Are Found On Latest
Victims

(By Associated Press)
PITTSBURGH, May 4.—Grim-faced officials of two states, taunted 10 years by a mad butcher who has counted his victims at more than a score, mobilized today for a man-hunt from Pittsburgh, dumping ground for three more mutilated bodies.

Detectives came from Cleveland, home of the madman's meanderings, as they did from Youngstown, O., and New Castle, Pa., ports of call in a tour of death that led yesterday to a railroad siding near here where three surgically-sliced headless corpses were found in three boxcars.

Traces Back to Cleveland
The slaughterer's trail, twisted and obscured by perhaps several months of time, apparently traced back to Cleveland, where in the downtown Kingsbury run section residents for years have been terrorized by a man with a knife who has killed and cut a dozen victims and left them dismembered in city dumps.

The trail seemed to follow the right-of-way of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie railroad, which skirts Kingsbury run, passes along New Castle's murder swamp, burial plot for a half-dozen victims, and then on to Youngstown, whence yesterday's decapitated men ultimately were consigned to the railroad's scrap and reclamation yards here.

Two of the bodies uncovered from crude wrappings had been cut into eight pieces by what morgue attendants said was an expert in the use of a surgeon's scalpel or a butcher knife. The third had the word "Nazl" carved across the chest in five-inch letters. There were no identifying clues. The nude victims.

Chills Put "Winter Carnival" Aspect On Night Relays

However, No One Has Cancelled, Says Manager Cope, And Meet Goes On

The 11th annual Salem Night Relays was on the verge of being a "winter carnival" today as close to 400 athletes from 31 Ohio and western Pennsylvania schools converged on Reilly stadium for competition in 17 track and field events.

Cold weather dimmed prospects for a record-breaking meet, but did not cut the entry list. Frederick E. Cope, director of the meet, who spent a sleepless night hoping for fair weather, announced that none of the 28 Ohio and five western Pennsylvania schools entered in the meet had cancelled because of the weather.

Slow Time Feared
The unfavorable weather is expected to slow down times in the running events and handicap performances in field competition, but the possibility still remained that several records may be broken by the star-studded array of athletes entered in the meet.

The temperature hovered around 42 at noon today, indicating that, unless the sun appeared this afternoon, the mercury might skid to around freezing for the finals tonight.

Finals in all but the weight events are scheduled to start at 7:30 tonight and continue until shortly after 10:15.

E. T. Phillips

Thirty Columbiana county candidates for Republican nominations in the primary election Tuesday, May 14, attended a G. O. P. meeting at the Memorial building last night.

The meeting was sponsored by the Salem Republican club to promote interest in the forthcoming primary and to give G. O. P. voters of the Salem area an opportunity to meet their candidates.

Candidates Speak
Atty Charles McCormick, president of the club, presided at the meeting and introduced the candidates, each of whom spoke briefly.

The program also featured music by Betty Ketterer and her "Lasses of Swing" and a short address by Judge Elmer T. Phillips of Youngstown, a member of the seventh district court of appeals.

Speaking on "The Judicial Ticket" Judge Phillips explained

Joe M. Kelley, manager of the Memorial building, takes a peek at some of the things that have been going on under Memorial building supervision during the past year—and these are only a few of the varied activities. Essentially a youth project, the Memorial building, however, meets the demands of civic clubs and other older organized groups as a place for meetings, conferences, etc.

Kelley and his staff direct basketball, volleyball, badminton, wrestling, weight-lifting, ping pong and other indoor groups during the winter season; softball leagues during the summer at Centennial park. Hundreds of youths are provided a wholesome athletic environment through this medium.

The Memorial building is one of the nine agencies which will participate in the funds to be raised in the annual Community Chest campaign starting next Tuesday evening. The goal this year is $20,350.

Mr. Patterson had been an active Democrat for about 20 years. At one time he was chairman of the Columbiana county Democratic party and was named to the board of elections about six years ago while serving as county coroner.

He was born June 15, 1861, on a farm about a mile and a half south of Elkton where he lived until moving to Lisbon. He was the son of Welch and Sarah Jane Patterson.

He was a member of the Methodist church at Elkton and was the organizer and a past master of the Elkrun grange. He also was a member of Concordia I. O. O. F. lodge of Lisbon.

In addition to his sister and niece, he leaves two brothers, John of Elkrun township, and William Patterson of Alliance.

The body will be brought to the Eells parlors here pending completion of funeral arrangements.

DEMAND BRITISH MILITARY GAINS

Chamberlain's "Self-De-lusion" Is Roundly
Criticized

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, May 4.—Collapse of the British campaign in central Norway brought Prime Minister Chamberlain's cabinet its sternest test of the war today as members of his own conservative party, hungry for military successes, showed signs of active rebellion.

Parliamentary sources indicated that unless a signal success for British arms is achieved before next Tuesday, when the house of commons begins an inquiry into the Norwegian reverse, the present government will face a bitter fight for its life.

Demands Change In Attitude
Growing restiveness within the prime minister's party was evidence last night when Richard K. Law, member of parliament for strongly conservative Hull, declared that the government's "attitude toward the problem must be changed before the country is in sight of victory."

Clement Davies, Welsh member of parliament, a liberal national, and thus normally a supporter of the government, announced simultaneously that he had met with a group of colleagues who had decided to oppose any vote of confidence during "the biggest crisis we ever had to face."

The Manchester Guardian raised its powerful voice to declare that Chamberlain's "capacity for self-de-lusion is a national danger," commenting upon the withdrawal of troops from Norway.

"What makes the taste of the whole episode more bitter," the Guardian said, "is that it follows so much shallow optimism, not to say boasting."

Warns Against Delusions
Law, whose father, Bonar Law, led the conservative party under Asquith, warned sternly against "widespread and highly dangerous delusions that the war is going to win itself without loss or sacrifice, that time is on our side and that Hitler has missed the bus."

His reference to Hitler, "missing the bus" was a direct slap at Chamberlain, who used the phrase in a speech April 4, five days before Germany invaded Norway and Denmark.

The government critics were put at a disadvantage, however, by the declaration of Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, that the cabinet would put up a united front against "political scalp hunters."

SCORE ONE FOR WINGS

Prime Minister Chamberlain might spoof the house of commons, but if not—which seems more likely—aviation has scored a telling point. It has caused Great Britain to revise its war policy.

At a point in Norway where Britain's superior seapower came into an open clash with Germany's airpower, seapower came off second best. Specifically, German airplanes made it impossible for the British navy to put ashore enough equipment to continue the campaign in the Trondheim area. The campaign officially has been abandoned.

This came about, according to the prime minister's explanation to M. P.'s, in spite of the fact the losses of the German navy have been great enough to alter the balance of naval power and permit redistribution of the main Allied fleets. When it is further considered that Mr. Chamberlain actually spoke of "local air superiority" in referring to success of German aviation his admission is deeply significant.

Significance deepens when it is remembered that Germany entered the war with virtually no navy, indicating a degree of confidence in the air arm that military experts elsewhere are just beginning to share. The British fleet has performed, is performing, will continue to perform remarkable feats. But on the record of the war so far—on the record of all other wars fought since development of fighting airplanes—the element that can sink ships, attack troops and fight its own counterpart in the air with equal ease is the most important addition to the arsenal since gunpowder.

START STITCHING

It was threatened last November when the Bigelow begeh had been deflated at the polls that Ohio would be plagued by its ghost for years to come.

Some apprehensive citizens even advised against disbanding the organization which had rallied opposition to the two Bigelow amendments. The fight, as they say it had just begun.

For the most part, however, Ohioans decided to call it a day. It seemed improbable the fiasco would be repeated.

So much for reminiscence. Herbert S. Bigelow of Cincinnati has received the secretary of state's approval of the form of a petition for a constitutional amendment intended to guarantee monthly incomes to single and married persons over 60. It's the same pension bogey which scared Ohio silly in 1939. With approximately a quarter of a million signatures on the petition, Mr. Bigelow would have the state by the ears again for another pop-eyed campaign. The place to take a stitch in time is when petitions are circulated. Every single one of the quarter of a million names should belong to someone who honestly believes the Bigelow pension plan is sound; it wouldn't be easy to get that many.

EVOLUTION

Liberals hate to think about the evolutionary process that makes conservatives of them if they don't perish by the wayside first.

But if a conservative is opposed to reform, preferring to cling to what already is in existence as long as it suits him, then a liberal defending the existing order—lock, stock and barrel—is a conservative.

Most liberals would rather be caught admiring Grover Cleveland than admit it. It's like finding the first gray hair, or being treated gently by a High school child who has been taught to respect age. But it happens all the time.

It happens to New Dealers who stand ready to fight revision of New Deal laws to the death; who believe every law passed while they are in power is ipso facto perfect.

It's funny, but it can be sad, too, as when New Dealers stave off wage-hour act revision and thus save the day for liberalism.

ANALYSTS' DELIGHT

A few days ago when it was reported that the first 250 corporations reporting earnings for January, February and March showed profits almost exactly 50 per cent higher than they were in the first quarter of last year, smiles began to spread. Then the analysts got busy. Great fellows, analysts.

They pointed out that business declined steadily throughout the quarter. They declared gloomily that the first quarter of 1939 wasn't so hot, anyway, and that things are falling faster now than they were in 1939. Besides, they doubted if 250 corporations were a fair cross-section.

Unemployment, they muttered, still was a going institution. Small enterprises, furthermore, weren't finding the going easy. And anyway, the federal reserve board production index for the first quarter of 1940 was only an average of 110—and that was the 12-month average in 1937.

Sometimes it seems as though one of the troubles with the country might be too much analysis. Every time a gift horse opens its mouth an analyst peers inside and says, "Some pretty bad cavities in there, big boy."

Doggy

SEATTLE—A woman carried a fluffy little white dog into a branch bank. Tellers smiled.

Finds Grasses, Not Roses, Are Guilty Of "Rose Fever"

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IT IS CALLED "rose fever" because it comes when the roses are blooming. Some people have it and some people don't. Some of those who have it refer to it as "my spring cold."

It was not until John Bostock, the Englishman, experimented on his own case that the guilty parties were found not to be the roses, but the grasses. John Bostock published his observations over 100 years ago, but nobody paid any attention to them until just lately.

It is natural for the rose fever victim to ascribe his trouble to the roses because when he smells the roses he is liable to get an attack. But this is merely because the

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Sticky petals and stamens of the rose hold the wind-blown pollen of the grasses, and when the victim is even in the room with the roses, the effluvia affects the mucous membrane if his nose.

The grasses which are responsible and the time of their blooming are as follows:

May 17—blue grass; May 17—rye; May 27—orchard grass; May 27—wheat; June 15—timothy; June 10—oat; July 1—corn.

The treatment may be either palliative or preventive. By palliative treatment by nasal sprays and eye drops. This we will deal with in an article later on in the season when symptoms are likely to be acute.

Preventive treatment consists in the use of pollen vaccines. It should start some time before the season begins. That is why I am drawing attention to it now.

One procedure as carried out by the modern doctor who is interested in allergy is to determine exactly what grass the victim is sensitive to. The principle upon which this diagnosis rests is that the skin is very sensitive to the chemicals of the pollen, and when a solution of the pollen is made and injected into the skin, or rubbed into the skin, there will be a red and inflammatory area of considerable size.

Several different pollens are rubbed in at the same time and the ones which show the largest wheal are those against which treatment is directed.

After the offending pollen is identified, hypodermic injections of weak dilutions of the pollen solution are made, growing stronger every week so that finally by the time the season opens, the patient will have acquired an immunity and can get through the season with little or no discomfort.

It is possible to give this preventive treatment co-seasonally, that is, beginning at the time the symptoms begin. My own experience has been that this vaccine treatment is more effective to use against the spring type of hay fever than against the fall or ragweed type.

Doctor Vaughan, of Richmond, believes that 80 per cent of patients receive adequate relief with co-seasonal treatment and 85 per cent with pre-seasonal treatment. By adequate relief is meant the disappearance of 75 per cent of symptoms.

The CAIRO GARTER MURDERS

By VAN WYCK MASON

CHAPTER XVII

"Come in, old lad, come in. Good morning, I'm glad to see you. You're such an adventurous blighter, was getting a bit worried when the Nil people said you'd gone out", Kilgour greeted North.

"How'd you learn where I was?"

"Docman at the Nil is paid to notice such things. I say, what's happened to your shoulder?"

North, disinclined to delay matters with an account of the near accident, made an excuse. Kilgour turned and someone's chair grated.

"Want Kit Clive to meet you?"

"Clive's one of the best, a friend of my old brother's at Sandhurst." From behind a desk rose a solid, athletic figure wearing the silver crowns of a chief inspector on the shoulder straps of a neat dark blue uniform.

"The chief inspector", Kilgour further explained, "is known hereabouts as Clive Bimbashi. He is in command of all white detectives in Egypt."

North, while forming his own impressions, sensed himself undergoing the penetrating scrutiny of a man who might be around thirty-eight. So deeply tanned by the Egyptian sun was he that his original complexion had been completely effaced in a deep old saddle color. Between his rather long nose and determined chin sprouted a short, aggressively pointed mustache. Clive's eyes, he decided, were deceptively brown and liquid; they held dangerous tones.

The chief inspector had arisen and with a look of shy admiration offered his hand. "This is a pleasure, Captain," he murmured. "We've heard so much about your work."

"I fear," North said with a quick smile, "Bruce has been talking out of turn. I hope you don't believe half what this high-binder," he jerked a nod at Kilgour, "tells you."

Clive laughed. "Even so, your reputation makes us delighted to see you here."

A few more preliminaries and the three gathered about a table surrounded by many notices, maps and schedules.

"I asked Kilgour here to ring you up," the chief inspector went on to explain, "because we're uncommon anxious to get after this Follonsbee matter in a hurry. Important to get after it while it's hot, don't you know? We'd like to hear what deductions you may have made concerning the evidence."

"If you don't mind, shall we let the Follonsbee evidence wait?" North began with studied tact, his supple fingers engaged in loading a short-stemmed pipe. "I don't like to go into details of a case until the background, the generalities are clear and a perspective is established in my mind. Do you understand?"

"Perfectly," Clive's head, very military with its close-cropped brown hair, inclined. "Major Kilgour tells me you have heard very little of this affair to date. An hour ago the commissioner, Sir George Ruthven, authorized me to answer any questions you may want. He's keen to meet you by the bye."

North fingered his chin an instant. "Tell me, Inspector, am I correct in my assumption that Follonsbee's murder is one in a series of killings all motivated by the same cause?"

"Yes, and that cause is a matter of vital, overwhelming importance to England, France, and—some other countries closer at hand."

"Gunrunning into Palestine, isn't it?"

The Englishman's expression did not change beyond a quick blink. "What makes you think that?"

"Certain powers are engaged in an—er—more or less illegal adventure," slowly replied North. "I imagine they would be delighted to see certain other nations diverted by trouble, say in Syria and Palestine. Both of them are ripe for trouble. Am I right?"

Clive frowned. "You are right! Arms are at a premium all through Palestine. We're doing everything we can to suppress this illegal munitions traffic, but it seems too late. I'm afraid we've muddled badly there."

In terse sentences the Anglo-Egyptian police officer described an appalling string of murders stretching back almost as far as the Ethiopian trouble. The first victims, it seemed, had been slain late in 1936, for the most part, small native or Levantine smugglers. Gradually, however, the importance of the victims had increased though the actual killings were fewer.

"How were they killed?" demanded the man from G-2, drawing comfortably on his pipe.

Almost without exception, the chief inspector said in a lowered tone, "They have been murdered—shot that is—somewhere away from the scene of the discovery. Later, after an interval of days sometimes, the corpse is deposited in some lonely spot on the edge of the desert, generally at a good distance from the nearest village."

"On the arm of each victim," Clive continued, "we have discovered a woman's garter."

"At length all save the most powerful smugglers were out of the running," Clive was saying. "Armstrong, as we call the murderer, had done a deadly effective job of extermination."

"How many smugglers are left—approximately?"

"Perhaps half a dozen—we really don't know," Clive, silver buttons gleam, got up, selected a clipboard from a long row and passed it over to the somber-eyed American.

"Here," he invited, "you can read for yourself. The first four or five pages will give you the gist of the case."

C.I.D. File No. 12 Central Office No. 24, August 10, 1937, 6:45—Ali Ibn Yusuf, aged 59, native of Eilat-tara, Body discovered beside old caravan route to Syria in desert beyond Fakis by Constable Kiamil. Deceased's wrists and ankles and mouth secured with two-inch adhesive. Cause of death—gunshot through stomach.

No. 245, August 10, 6 p. m.—Hed-din du Raba, aged 64, native of Mehivieh, Body discovered partially eaten by jackals near ruins of Tell Es-Semut by Constable Kiamil. Deceased's wrists and ankles and mouth secured with two-inch adhesive. Severely beaten. Cause of death—throat cut in brutal manner.

No. 254, August 17, 7:00 A. M.—Kait Barkuk, aged 23, native of Syria. Body discovered near Estim El-Gemil by drag of mine sweeper K-312 on maneuvers. Inspector Walters, Port Said police force, in charge. Deceased had been encased while yet alive in a barrel of Portland cement.

"Eh! What's this?" More narrowly the man from G-2 surveyed still another report.

No. 263, September 19, Port Said—Police Inspector Craig discovered the bodies of three Arab seamen and three Greek mercantile marine officers in the ruins of an ancient reservoir ten miles east of the port. Automatic rifle bullets were recovered from several of the corpses which had their hands secured with picture wire. Evidence strongly indicated that the victims had been lined up against a wall and massacred in cold blood. Two of the cadavers wore a red-and-black female garter about one arm.

Again and again Hugh North reread the account, tugging absently at his close-clipped black mustache. He was conscious nonetheless of Kilgour staring fixedly at him, of Clive's anxious tenseness.

"Cold-blooded swine, that Armstrong!" grunted the latter.

"You're positive all these men were murdered at the same time?"

"Yes."

North frowned. "Anything interesting happen in Cairo when the news got out?"

"It didn't get out," came the grin response. "Sir George Ruthven took good care to keep it quiet. The Foreign Office would have listened to a public yelling to high heaven—pulled us out of here and spoiled any chances of coming up with Armstrong. For the same reason we suppressed all news of Follonsbee's death. By the way, you have not mentioned this murder to anyone, have you?"

"No."

An orderly in a white linen suit rapped, entered, and deposited before Clive a heavily sealed envelope. In departing, the messenger opened the door but a moment yet it was long enough to give North an unmistakably clear view of Mollie McLeod speeding by on light feet.

Hugh North was profoundly puzzled. What in the world could this girl with the eyes of midnight blue be doing at 18½ Sharia el Hafarou? She had not seemed furtive; indeed, the young Irish woman had swung along as if she owned the place. He started to put a question but postponed it since Clive his fingers nervously smoothing his short-cut hair, began speaking in deeply agitated tones.

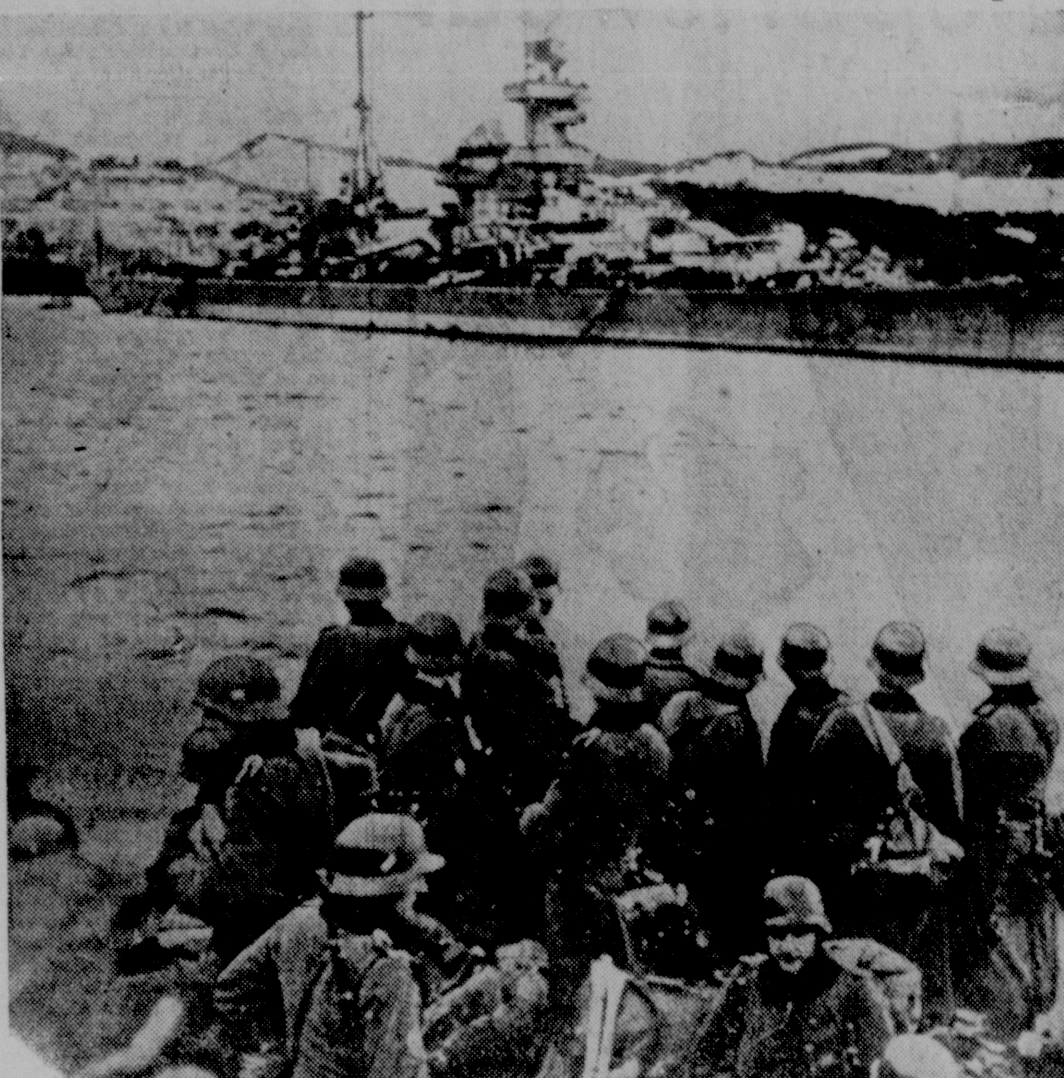

"The Otto Wolff killing was the last straw. Until then Armstrong had steered clear of Europeans—Westerners, that is: His Excellency, Sir George Ruthven, turned simply livid and insisted I detail Inspector McKenzie to watch the Palestinian border. I got two reports from him—a week ago—then they stopped very suddenly and with no explanation." Aging creases appeared about the chief inspector's eyes. "To say the least we are deeply concerned for his safety."

Then Clive expressed almost the identical thought North had evolved earlier in the afternoon.

"Blasit it all, there's too much money at stake that's what's back of the bloodletting. At a conservative estimate, a million pounds was spent for arms last month, sterling that is, not Turkish. A modern military rifle delivered in El Arish or Hebron brings ten pounds. The same rifle in Europe costs, second-hand, around two pounds ten. You can easily figure the profit, Captain."

People who seek charity can almost always find it. There are funeral directors, even, who use their ambulance as a sort of bait. They make "no charge" for the use of the ambulance, hoping to place the family under such a deep obligation that when a funeral director is needed, the "free ambulance" firm will get the call.

I don't care for the idea. Very few people do, when they realize WHY this bait is offered. The Stark ambulance is NOT "free"; it serves for a modest fee, and the user incurs no obligation whatsoever.

Among other things this sermon will point to the fact that a man who is a force for good among his fellows is more than a "hail fellow, well met." Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting" (Galatians 6:7-8).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Do you ask wisdom to be merciful and not to punish sin? Then 'ye ask angels.' Without punishment, sin would multiply" (p. 10).

Sunday school, 9:45—(Isaiah 55:1-11) Charles W. Youtz, supt.

"The invitation to enter into the Kingdom of God goes out to every human being. God knows nothing about the barriers of race or social standing. Everyone is included in this program. The acceptance of this divine invitation has not been perfect. Some plead delay. Others plainly reject this open welcome. In time such a spirit of rejection may bring such a hardened spirit that the desire to follow God may be entirely absent. God may not be found by those who so carelessly trample and tread on the sacred affairs of His Kingdom."

Morning Worship, 11:00—Sermon: "Our Ascended Savior."

"It was 40 days after our Lord's resurrection that He ascended into heaven. This had been plainly told the disciples a long time before and complete preparation had been made for this time, when Jesus would no longer be with the disciples in physical form. The ascension of our Lord is further evidence of the divinity of Christ. His journey was only to be temporary upon this earth. He came to reveal the love and will of the Father in heaven. He came to give His life as a ransom for many. This work was all done. The growth of His Kingdom upon this earth shows the continual blessing and power of Christ."

"Because I live, ye shall live also. For this is the will of my Father, that every one that beholdeth the Son, and believeth on Him, should have eternal life. Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth hath eternal life. I am the living bread which came down out of heaven: If any man eat of this bread, he shall live for ever."

We Need the Church
"Most of the relations of life are reciprocal. We give and we get. The church needs the man and the man needs the church. Just as there is a certain intellectual community which must organize itself if it would retain its vitality, so there is a spiritual community which shares the life of God with men and which when organized is the church."

"We need the church as the agency through which we may make our greatest contribution to the kingdom of God. The hermit did not see the point when he retired from men for he lost the opportunity to express his spiritual life. Essentially his solitude was selfish. A little thought will convince any one that we can accomplish very little without the help of our fellows. In every walk of life a man's influence depends on the organizations through which he works."

"The church is the one organization today which has for its sole purpose the forwarding of the kingdom of God. There are many organizations which supplant it but this one institution has that for its sole and only purpose. No man will deny that the good man living alone will have some influence, but he can find no expression of his spiritual life without the organization which fosters the spiritual life."

Grimes Struck By Batted Ball, Lost To Tribe For At Least Half Of Season

Cleveland Infielder Suffers Crushed Nose and Bones, Fortunate He Wasn't Killed; Hit During Team Batting Practice

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The Cleveland Indians will be without the services of infielder Oscar Grimes for at least two months, physicians said today after X-ray examinations showed his nose and bones in the left side of his face crushed by a batted ball.

Dr. E. W. Maloy, who set the bones, expressed belief Grimes' eyesight would not be impaired. The ball struck just under his eye and Dr. Maloy said if it had hit an inch higher Grimes would have been killed.

The accident occurred during batting practice yesterday as a liner off Sammy Hale's bat struck the 23-year-old Minerva player as he stood in the infield. The scheduled game with the Senators was called because of cold weather, but Manager Oscar Vitt ordered the drill anyway.

Mrs. Grimes booked passage on an airliner from Cleveland today to join her husband. He is expected to remain in a hospital at least a month.

Sub For Trosky
Grimes, the team's jack-of-all trades, has been playing first base in place of Hal Trosky, called to Cleveland by the illness of his son. Last year Grimes played every position in the infield, batting .269 in 119 games.

FURNACE FIVE COPS LAURELS IN PIN LEAGUE

American Bowling Loop Completes 1939-40 Schedule

Five rounds of action in the American Bowling League came to a close at the Masonic alleys last night as the eight-team circuit completed its 1939-40 season with the Electric Furnace far out in front in the championship race.

The league still has a large number of postponed matches outstanding, but the outcome of these will have no bearing on the championship race.

Officially "In"
The Electric Furnace is officially "in," boasting a record of 75 wins against 21 losses and a 17-game lead over its nearest rival, Fernengel's Coils. The Furnace five has three postponed matches remaining.

Fernengel's now hold second place, but can be tied for the position if the third-place Fitzpatrick Super Service makes a clean sweep of two postponed matches. Fernengel's last season's record of 61 wins and 41 defeats, while Fitzpatrick's boast a record of 55 wins and 41 set-backs.

The Ohio Edison, with four postponed matches outstanding, appears certain to capture fourth money. The Edisonites have won 49 games, lost 44.

The Democrats, who are the only threat to the Ohio Edison's fourth place berth, rest in fifth position with a 300 record of 51 wins and 51 losses.

Demings Sixth
Sixth place is held by Demings with a record of 45 victories and 57 defeats, while the Lease Drugs are in seventh position with 29 wins, 67 losses. The Masons bring up the rear with 25 wins and 68 losses.

The Electric Furnace's championship team includes Lynn Ferguson, Howard Heston, Hills Linton, Charlie Wernet, Albert Wright and Joe Jackson.

Summaries of last night's matches, completing the league schedule, follow:

BOSTON STAGES BATTING SPREE TO MOVE AHEAD

Red Sox Go Into Lead On 10-Inning Victory Over Browns

By BILL WHITE
The early season setbacks of the Yankees, the surge of the Brooklyn Dodgers and the slow start of the stingless Boston Bees have all contributed in keeping anyone but the immediate family interested in the condition of the Boston Red Sox.

But the Cronin clouters clamored for attention yesterday on the wings of some real power displayed while whacking out a ten-inning 9-8 victory over the St. Louis Browns.

The Sox collected four home runs. Jim Tabor got two, Ted Williams and Manager Joe Cronin one each.

That production was one home run more than the New York Yankees could manage in their 8-4 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Lead League
The Red Sox slugging put them into first place in the league—a position filled most of last year by their arch rivals, the Yankees.

Now, up Boston way at least, there is a distinct feeling that the last year contenders are going to be this year's champions.

The Yankees managed to pull up to the 500 mark with a typical 8-4 victory over the White Sox. The victory gave Marvin Breuer his first big league victory, though he allowed 10 hits.

In the only other game played in the majors, the Boston Bees won their second game of the season behind the fine hurling and timely hitting of Bill Posedel—a 4-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Rain and cold weather put a crimp in the other contests.

Derringer After His 3rd Victory

CINCINNATI, May 4.—Paul Derringer was out after his third victory of the season for the Reds today, against the Philadelphia Phils, hoping that the weather man undergoes a change of heart.

Big Paul was shifted into the lineup after chill breezes prevented a game with the sixth place Phils yesterday. It was the second postponement here in as many days because of cold weather.

Kirby Hulse, who pitched one of three Philadelphia victories in 22 starts over Cincinnati last season, was called by Manager Doc Prothro.

The delayed game was set for July 14 as part of a doubleheader. Despite temperature of 36, the coldest May 3 of record here, both teams worked out at Crosley field.

Angott Defeats Day For Crown

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 4.—Sammy Angott, the little glove-throwing Louisville slugger, is the new lightweight champion in 41 states and a few outlying precincts ruled by the National Boxing association.

The one-time bootblack tied in the stretch after building up a decisive early margin but maintained enough power last night to whip Davey Day, solemn, plodding Chicagoan, in 15 rounds before a Kentucky derby eve crowd of approximately 8,000.

Jack Dempsey, the former heavyweight King who called the decision as both referee and sole judge, awarded six rounds to Angott and five to Day, scoring four even.

CECILVILLE, Cal.—Alex Gibson was walking through the woods when he encountered a full grown wild cat. He picked up a stone and hurled it with enough force to kill the animal on the spot.

DIT IS SECOND CHOICE TO WIN DERBY CLASSIC

Mioland Figured to Finish Strong Third In Race Today

BY GAYLE TALBOT Associated Press Writer

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 4.—Once again the nation's pulse will skip a few beats late this afternoon while the horses go pounding around the Churchill Downs oval in the 69th running of the Kentucky Derby.

At about 4:45 (Central Standard time) the field of eight or nine beauties will break from the starting gate and set off on the mile and one-quarter grind that brings fame and a garland of roses for the winner and more than $60,000 to the happy owner.

The thousands who have swarmed into this pleasant town to witness the three-year-old classic faced a cool, cloudy day—but the weather man said they would be spared of rain.

Unless a serious mistake has been made, the winning steed in the big race will be Bimelech, the undefeated pride and joy of Col. E. R. Bradley, old and ailing owner of four previous Derby champions.

The money will be poured in on him today until he pays a ridiculously small price—if he wins.

The second choice almost surely will be Dit, the undefeated gelding that won last week's Wood Memorial, while the coast entry, Mioland, likely will close as a strong third in the wagering. A bushel of small bets is expected to go down on both these horses.

There are, of course, a few highly vocal dissenters who honestly believe that Dit or Mioland will outrun the Bradley colt in that closing charge down the stretch.

The riders of those two horses, in fact, are so subtly certain that they have the race between them.

Come to think of it, there is something a trifle silly about making any horse the favorite that Bimelech will be today. Too many things can happen. Any horse can get a poor start or a dumb ride, or both.

Providing there are no scratches before post time, the others trying to take Bimelech's measure are Gallahadion, Pictor, Roman, Sirocco, True Star and Royal Man.

Sirocco was due to make the effort only if the track was lightning fast. True Star was believed to be in there only for his owner's amusement. Pictor has a few staunch supporters.

The brutal weather undoubtedly has cut down the crowd, which had been expected to exceed last year's 80,000. Some stayed home, too, because they were going to understand that Bimelech had it sewed up and that the race would be run only as a matter of form.

CHILLY TRACK MEET LOOMING

However, No One Has Cancelled, As Relays Will Go On

In the weight events were to be run off this afternoon, starting at 2. Tonight's program will have as an added attraction the appearance of five Ohio State university track stars who are slated to appear in exhibition events. The Buckeye athletes expected to perform are Bob Johnson, discus thrower; Bob Sulzman and Bob Wright, high hurdlers; and Charles Beetham and George O'Brien, half-milers.

East Tech Favored

Heading a field of 31 teams in the meet is the Defending Champion Cleveland East Tech squad, rated a strong favorite to capture its second straight night relays championship.

East Tech is the current Ohio scholastic track champion, and recent winner of the Mansfield relays.

Other teams entered in the meet are: Akron Buchtel, Akron East, Akron Garfield, Akron North, Akron South, Akron West, Barberton, Boardman, Canton McKinley, Cuyahoga Falls, Elyria, Erie Academy, Erie Strong Vincent, Fremont Ross, Lisbon, Lorain, Louisville, Massillon, Mingo Junction, Pittsburgh Brentwood, Pittsburgh Sewickley, Ravenna, Salem, Shaker Heights, Sharon, Southington, Struthers, Warren, Wellsville and Youngstown Rayen.

The heaviest attack on meet records is expected to be made by the East Tech team, headed by Chester Thomas, state 100 and 220-yard dash champions. Other outstanding athletes scheduled to compete include Ray Jordan of Akron South, state mile champion, and Bob Shaw of Fremont Ross, who recently bettered the state record in the shot put.

AIRPLANE CLUB FORMED BY BOYS

Petrol Pups Build Models; Capture First Prize At Butler

His model stayed up only 50 seconds on a first flight and 55 seconds on the second. An automatic shutoff would have brought the plane back to earth had not the air current interfered. Between 50 and 75 other model planes were entered in the meet.

His model was a Class B ship, which includes planes having between 250 and 450 square inches of wing space and a motor with a displacement of not more than 2 or 3 cubic inches.

Class A models are those having up to 250 square inches of wing area and a 2 cubic inch motor. Class C planes are those larger than the other two types, it is explained by Kenneth Juhn, president of the Petrol Pups.

When the club members build a "gas" model for competition, they must make certain that their planes weigh eight ounces per square foot of wing area and also weigh 80 ounces per cubic inch of motor. So you can see that these young aviation enthusiasts don't just "throw" a plane together.

The 16 members of the Salem Petrol Pups are members of the National Aeronautical association. The association's model plane division is expected to license the ships of the local group in addition to granting an official NAA charter.

NORWAY YIELDS TO NAZI DRIVE

Central Command Calls On Germany For An Armistice

(By Associated Press)

STOCKHOLM, May 4.—Organized Norwegian resistance to the German invasion collapsed today in the face of an Allied retreat from all but the northernmost section of Norway.

Alone and encircled, "with only enough ammunition for one day," the Norwegian central command asked Germany for an armistice, acknowledging the Nazis as masters of Norway and bitterly accusing the Allies of "incomprehensible action" in retreating without proper notice to the embattled Norwegian forces.

The fugitive Norwegian government, which alone has authority to sue for peace, formally was reported fleeing into the mountainous north country where British, French and Norwegian forces still are trying to dislodge a German contingent around Narvik, Arctic ore port.

Bombardment Reported There were unsubstantiated reports that British fleet units were now engaged in a heavy bombardment of Narvik to cover the landing of some expert French Alpine light artillery units charged with the task of eliminating high-perched machine-gun nests built by the Germans on the hills around Narvik.

It was indicated the Allies were now making an intensified drive to gain complete control of Narvik in the interests of establishing a base there. (The French war ministry announced that the Allies had surrounded a force of between 3,000 and 4,000 Germans at Narvik, and that the Germans' position was desperate.)

Whereabouts of the British expeditionary force which sailed away from Namsos Thursday was unknown.

One British officer, just before the embarkation, said the British were bound for England.

Ohio Farmer, Jealous of Hired Hand, Kills Wife

Where Kail watched

Jealous of his hired hand, Farmer Roy Kail of Gilmore, O., frequently sat in a small shed between the silo and barn on his farm and watched his wife Mrs. Nell Kail 48 and the hired hand Roy Jones.

Jones, 48, while they were in the stables. As they finished milking one day, Kail shot and killed his wife with a shotgun. Farmer Kail is being held without bail in a New Philadelphia jail.

POLICE REVIVE KILLER SEARCH

Meanderings of Mad Butcher Traced as More Bodies Are Found

30 to 40 years old, had been dead an estimated six weeks to two months.

Arrived April 21

The three cars arrived here April 21, the same day they were shipped from Struthers, near Youngstown, where railroad officials said they had stood idle in interchange yards for two days after 15 months in Youngstown yards. Found near one body were charred scraps of a Youngstown newspaper dated Dec. 11, 1939.

Investigators plan to center their search at Youngstown where a mysterious fire broke out in the railroad yards Feb. 28. District Att'y Andrew T. Park said it was possible the madman killer, who has burned several victims, started the blaze in the hope the gruesome evidence would be destroyed.

Deputy Coroner Anthony Sappo found the mad butcher angle confused by discovery of the word "Nazi" on one body which he said "indicates a possibility there might be some secret society, opposed to Nazis, connected with the case."

Merylo reported a bloody print of a "good-sized" shoe found on wrappings in one of the cars apparently was that of the slayer's and proved for the first time that the butcher was a man and not a woman as some suspected. He also considered the inverted "Z" in the carved "Nazi" as "showing the sex-died killer is not educated and probably is a fellow who rides the trains, roaming the country."

DEATHS

WALTER C. LEACH

Word has been received by R. R. Johnson of Salem of the death of Walter C. Leach, 76, Minneapolis, president of the Minneapolis Fire and Marine Insurance Co., about 10 days ago.

Mr. Leach, born at Hastings, Minn., and educated in Cedar Rapids, Ia., where he attended Coe college, had been prominent in insurance business for more than half a century. Beginning as a local agent, he became secretary of the Minneapolis concern in 1916 and, later, its president, which position he held at the time of his death.

He was at one time supervisor of the Chicago and Minneapolis territory and traveled through this section. Mr. Johnson and Mr. Leach had been friends for many years.

He is survived by his wife, a daughter, and a brother, George E. Leach, mayor of Minneapolis.

Funeral service and burial were in Minneapolis.

MRS. POWERS FUNERAL

Relatives and friends here will attend funeral service at 12:30 p. m. Sunday at the home in Canfield for Mrs. Bert Powers, the former Miss Mabel Dyball of Salem, who died yesterday morning at her home.

Mrs. Powers was the daughter of the late Dr. E. E. Dyball and the late Mrs. Dyball.

THOMAS E. EWING

LISBON, May 4.—Thomas Edmund Ewing, 84, a life-long resident of the village, died Friday night at his home, 231 W. Pine st. Born here Jan. 7, 1856, he was the son of James and Mary Hutchinson Ewing. He was a cement worker years ago. He was a member of Jehovah's Witnesses. He was married April 22, 1916, to Harriet Hill-abide.

Surviving are his wife; one son, William of Detroit; a daughter, Mrs. John Horner of Lisbon; one sister, Mrs. Robert Dixon of Lisbon and eight grandchildren.

The funeral service will be held at 2 p. m. Monday at the Eells parlors, with interment in Lisbon cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home Sunday evening.

30 CANDIDATES AT G.O.P. RALLY

Importance of Judiciary Stressed by Judge E. T. Phillips

the system of electing judges for probate court, common pleas court, the court of appeals and the Ohio supreme court.

Judge Phillips said that judicial candidates can take "two roads" either by entering the party primary or by filing for the November election on a non-partisan ticket.

Select Right Man

The Youngstown jurist stressed the importance of selecting the right men for judicial offices, citing the judiciary as the most important branch of government because it "interprets the laws."

Urging all voters to go to the polls Tuesday, May 14, Judge Phillips pointed to the primary as an all-important event because it is in the primary that party members select the candidates who will represent them in the fall election.

Judge Phillips was introduced by Atty Henry Reese, secretary of the Salem Republican club.

KOHLER, Wis.—Volunteer firemen didn't have to search for this fire. The fire station was damaged by a $3,000 blaze. Obliviously, the fire set off the fire alarm.
